Editor’s Comments

I do not think this manuscript suits as original article because there are only two table in this manuscript.

Is possible publication as Case Reports or Research Letters?

Author’s Feedback

This research on “Influence of nutrients on growth and yield of bajra napier hybrid grass” was conducted for two years. Bajra napier hybrid grass is an important fodder crop in our country. This crop is repeatedly harvested and almost there will be seven harvests per year. It is not wise to give all the data to compare the results. Hence, the pooled mean has been taken to write this article and hence, the concise data are presented in this original research article. Hence, I request to consider this as the original research article.
