Editor’s Comment:

I read the original paper submitted and both the comments of the reviewers and the final version.

The manuscript concerns an important research topic and presents some novelties which could contribute to increase the level of knowledge of scientists.

The Authors included the comments of the reviewers and I noted an improvement in the final version in the manuscript.

Therefore, even if one reviewer indicate that the paper is not suitable for publication, in my opinion the paper could be published. However, the final decision should be taken by the editor in chief according with the policy of the journal.
